Confidentiality

These services are confidential and the information obtained is privileged. Only your written permission gives us authority to release or divulge information to individuals or agencies designated by you. We do need your permission to bill your health insurance company for these services. Court orders and legal mandatory reporting requirements also result in the release of designated information, although these situations occur rarely. However, please understand that some contracts with insurance companies, such as Blue Cross, stipulate that they have a right to review records. In addition, when a request for further services is submitted, called a Prior Authorization, a review of treatment and treatment plan must be submitted. These are all discussed with you before actually being submitted, however.

Patients are responsible for fees on all services received at Duluth Psychological Clinic.

Cash payments within one week of your session results in a 25% fee reduction.
